

Government Investigations

When it comes to government investigations in the healthcare industry, we know the landscape better than anyone. For more than 20 years, our lawyers have focused on regulatory compliance and government investigations specific to the healthcare industry. Nelson Hardiman's government investigations practice combines on-point government experience, in-depth understanding of the complex regulations and underlying issues driving healthcare policy, and a sensitivity to the critical nature of these issues.

We advise national and local healthcare providers on criminal investigations and charges, civil False Claims Act (FCA) and fraud lawsuits, administrative overpayment and disciplinary proceedings, and regulatory compliance issues, including internal investigations, voluntary disclosures of possible FCA violations, the federal anti-kickback statute and the Stark Law. Our unparalleled experience in government investigations gives us the ability to navigate critical and costly legal problems that threaten providers foundational to the healthcare industry.
