

Choosing The Right Addiction Treatment Program

Harry Nelson discusses the difficulty of choosing the right addiction treatment program with the flood of information from the internet, along with many the marketing pitches for programs across the country. In this article, Harry addresses what friends and families should aware of when choosing the right program, and the effectiveness of particular approaches, as well as some serious safety concerns to consider.

Read more